LAWRENCE E. (Okekeanta) WILL

What Did Lake People Do For A Living?

(Editor's note: This Custard Apple Days story is the substance of a talk presented to the Clewiston Kiwanis Club July 9. Author Will received the invitation to discuss the early lake industries from William Lanier and Carl Warner of the Belle Glade Citizens Association.

When you start looking back at the various ways in which people here on the lake have made a living you might be surprised at some of them. In fact, the first one of all seems to be the most surprising. Naturally, the farther back you go, the fewer people there were here, but in proportion to the population, the principal industries appear to have been in about this order: farming, hog raising, fishing and hunting. This hunting, by the way, was of different kinds at different periods, and the first period was the hunting of Indians.

Now don't get me wrong. I don't mean killing Indians, although there had been a plenty of that too. The Seminole War had cost the government more money and more men than it liked to think about, and still had not accomplished a great deal, so they decided to call it quits in 1842.

However, trouble between the Indians and the white settlers who kept crowding them southward persisted. The government then, some fifteen years later, decided that the settlers might finish what the troops had attempted to do, that is, capture the remaining Seminoles so they could be deported to Arkansas Territory. Rewards were offered that ran as high as $500.00 for a live man, $250.00 for a squaw and $100.00 for a "pickinny". Those backwoods crackers went to work and cleaned out every redskin on the shore of Okeechobee, and so

I guess that was the first industry on the lake.

Next came the plume hunters back in the 1860's and 90's. That was when ladies' hats were adorned with bright colored feathers and even the complete birds, but the ultimate in decoration was the feathery plume of the snowy egret. Since these plumes grew only during the nesting season, the hunters, by killing the parent birds destroyed all the young as well. These plumes were extremely valuable, and as the birds got scarcer, the feathers became worth more than their weight in gold. It didn't take many years to exterminate all the egrets on the lake.

The hunters then turned to trapping otters. There had been otter trapping done here before, but after the birds were gone it became quite an important business. Alligators, too, had been killed by hunters during all these periods, but the big days of gator hunting came after the Everglades canals were dug. Before then, the sawgrass country which fairly teemed with alligators, had been almost inaccessible to hunters, now, with easy access into the interior, the country swarmed with hunters, who, by burning off the sawgrass, could easily find the gator holes.

All of this, however, was but a preliminary to the big industry which dominated the lake for many years, catfishing. The first successful commercial fishing on the lake appears to have been done by Fernando Miller from LaBelle, who, with his two sons, Bert and Oliver in 1904 started the O.K. Fish Company. Bert established a camp on the west side of the lake and Oliver had one at what later became known as Stuckey's Ditch at Canal Point. Eventually they owned four camps and eighteen boats and employed 25 men. Others quickly followed them to the lake. In the following year near Oliver Miller's camp were also those of the Bacom family, H. C. Thompson and Paul Thibodeau.

Most successful of all the fishermen was Capt. Tom A. Bass who, in 1906, with the steamboat, "Success" from Kissimmee, started a fish camp at Lookout Point at the mouth of the Kissimmee. He was here when the hurricane of 1910 destroyed his camp, and he and his family had to subsist on one pot of gruel until the supply boat arrived. At one time Tom Bass owned 47 runabouts and several refrigerated railroad cars, and was reputed to be worth a million dollars.

He was paid $35,000.00 for the fishing rights from Pahokee to Clewiston, which required all camps in that part of the lake to sell him their fish. The next largest operator was the Standard Fish Co., which was chartered in 1910 and operated in the lake. The most prosperous days for the fishermen was before 1915 although the greatest quantity of fish was probably taken after that date.

Fishing continued until the effects of draining the Glades and lowering the lake level were felt. The fish no longer had all that shallow water in which to breed and the fishermen mourned that "the lake was fished out," although fishing still was an important part of the economy even after the railroad arrived in Moore Haven in 1918.

It was due to the fishing industry that the first settlements were made on Lake Okeechobee: Tantie, near Okeechobee City, Utopia, seven miles south of Taylor's Creek, and Uthegrove Beach, three miles farther south. There were also many fish camps on and near Bacom's Point, which like the others mentioned, had a post office in the early days.

The earliest settlers on the east side of the lake discovered considerable herds of hogs roaming wild in the woods. These are believed to have originally belonged to the Seminoles who maintained a camp at Indiantown. They were claimed by an Indian, Billy Stewart, who occasionally rounded up a bunch and sold them in Ft. Pierce.

During a period when catfishing was unprofitable, some of the fishermen turned to hog raising. Among these were Gid Hage (some folks always believed that his name was Gid Hogg), Aaron Bronson, Harrison Osteen, and the Baxter brothers as well as W. J. Connors, the highway builder. These men stretched fences across the peninsula at Bacom's Point and elsewhere and turned high grade hogs in with the razor backs to improve the breed. The hogs were sold in W. Palm Beach.

The advent of farmers on East Beach spelled the end of open range since the hogs industriously rooted up crops and trees. The hog raisers moved such as they could catch and the settlers joyously shot those which were left.

An early industry that should not be overlooked was that of selling sawgrass Everglades to people from the North and West. Several land companies operated their own passenger boats for bringing these prospective settlers and speculators to the Lake. The settlement of Ritta, near Lake Harbor, was established for their overnight accommodation. It was here that R. J. Bolles built his hotel in 1911, which shortly was augmented by the hotel of Mrs. King and by that of Felix Forbes on Ritta Island. Callahan's experimental garden was maintained for their edification.

The beginning of the farming was the gardens planted by the wives of fishermen. Their vegetables grew remarkably large and fine, and as their fame spread, farmers flocked to the lake to clear and plant. The first crops, since these were the ones they were most acquainted with, were tomatoes, peppers and eggs. The recurring floods beginning in 1922 necessitated a quicker maturing crop, and that is why beans were for many years the leading product.

The now great sugar industry had its beginning with a three jointed stalk Simpson cane obtained from a fish boat and planted in 1912 by the mother of Ed Jensen, now Pahokee's postmaster. From this one stalk came the most of the cane patches of every fish camp and settler.

During Prohibition these cane patches produced much delicious syrup, as well as some very potent still distilled beer in the swamp. Considerable imported liquor was also transported to the lake during this period by boat and even by plane, including that famous Black Phantom of East Beach, and so I guess this could be called another early industry. And now you can see how people made their livings here on the lake back in the olden days.

WHEN'S THE TIME TO BUY A CAR?

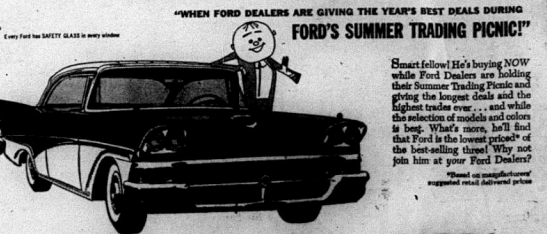

"WHEN I CAN AFFORD IT!"
Tak, tak! Too bad he hasn't checked up on car prices lately. He's find that Ford is the lowest priced of the best-selling three!

Churches of Christ Scientist

How strength and freedom are gained through understanding God, divine Love, will be a topic dealt with at Christian Science Services Sunday.

One of the selections from the Bible in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Love," is from Matthew: "And Jesus went about all Galilee, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing all manner of sicknesses and all manner of diseases among the people" (4:23).

Conversely, passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy include the following (454:18-23): "Dove inspires, illuminates, designates, and leads the way. Right motives give pinions to thought, and strength and freedom to speech and action. Love is priestess at the altar of Truth, waits patiently for divine Love to move upon the vessels of mortal mind, and form the perfect concept."

BIBLE ... THOUGHT

Our Nation's Greatest Need By U. W. Malcolm

The chief purpose of human government is the bestowal of liberty upon all its subjects. Liberty is freedom more than life. Liberty is freedom from the bond of tyranny, the rule of bigots, the bond binding the mind and the soul of manhood. We will roam the land, sea, and sky to rest under the folds of the flag of liberty.

Liberty could hear the voice of millions who have fallen on the battle fields of earth, would they not exclaim, "We died that liberty might live, that righteousness and truth might reign among all the people of the earth." Righteousness exalts a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people. Proverbs 14:34.

Righteousness promotes the life, prosperity and safety of any nation. It will do more than that. It cannot be denied that in our times victory does most alarm.

Queen Victoria was right when she handed a Bible to an ambassador from a heathen chief and said, "Tell your master that this is the secret of England's greatness." The best patriot the man who loves his Bible best, tries hardest to live by it, and to get others to live by it. God has given us a pleasant land, a very fruitful land, a land blessed with intelligence, liberty and Christian faith. "Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord." Psalm 134.

MYF In Charge Of Sunday Nite Service

"God's Own Image" will be the sermon topic of the Rev. John B. Gill, Jr., pastor of the Community Methodist Church at the morning service Sunday, August 3.

The Sunday night service will be in charge of the Intermediate MYF. Those attending camp at Leesburg that week will relate some of their experiences. Attending were Cathy White, Richard Hodges, Mary Collins, Fred Boets, Barbara Wolf, Michael Berryhill and Bobby Carter.

The Book

The last book of the Bible, The Revelation, was written primarily for the seven churches of Asia (a province that extended from the southwestern half of Asia Minor), but since the message is relevant to all Christians, and since the book treats of Divine Judgment upon the whole world, it seems fit and proper that it be read and taught to heart by all believers. John was in exile when he received the series of visions of this book. His ecstatic experience thrills us even to this day when it is the rule to be very practical, to discount sentiment and emotion. In fact we are prone to disbelieve anything that borders on the supernatural, forgetting that Jesus' birth and resurrection were wholly supernatural.

Try reading The Revelation with an eye for beauty and grandeur, and an ear for solemnity and majesty. You will be simply repaid.

1. To whom was The Revelation given?
2. Who gave it?
3. Who showed The Revelation to John?
4. How do we know that we should read The Revelation?
5. To whom did John send the message of The Revelation?
6. What great city is described in the 21st and 22nd chapters?
7. Why is the book of Revelations called the Apocalypse?
8. Alpha and Omega in Rev. 22:13 refers to whom?
9. What are the words meant?
10. Quote the closing words of this great book.

He is the happiest, be he king or peasant, who finds peace in his Christian life. — Goethe

Changing Times Are Noted in Dairy Farming as Automation Takes Over

By IRA MILLER

Farm Electrification Bureau

More and more dairy farms are being converted to automation—gradually comes the change. In fact the whole business of milking is undergoing some pretty radical changes as automation gradually comes to the fore.

Let's look inside this milkinghouse and see what goes on. First, the farmer has gone about as far as he can with present equipment in his efforts to handle milking chores the easy way. This is "milking" in a bulk milk cooler in the milking house via a pipe line system. It is a bulk milk cooler and held at the proper temperature until a tank truck arrives, as illustrated, to draw it from the tank and take it to the receiving station.

The milk house is adequately wired and well lighted, with illumination based on a formula of two watts per square foot of floor area. Lighting is done by means of two watt per square foot of floor area. Lighting is done by means of two watt per square foot of floor area. Today, $5,000,000 copies of the daily newspaper will be printed and sold in the U.S.

THIS IS A VIEW of a civil defense portion of the new underground storage facility in a converted limestone mine near Neosho, Mo. It has built-in automatic sprinklers and special ventilating equipment. The office of defense and Civilian Mobilization has stockpiled here for use after attack about 2,500 tons of supplies, including Army hospital cots, stretchers, and supplies and equipment for 200 complete civil defense emergency hospitals of 200 beds each. Superimposed on this is a map of ODCM storage sites across the nation at strategic locations. (ODCM Photos)

SURVIVAL STOCKPILE

ODCM Has Vast Supplies In 'Bank' If U. S. Is Hit

One of the nation's largest "bank accounts" against the possibility of enemy attack is the Office of Defense and Civilian Mobilization's stockpile of strategic materials.

Stored away in 42 ODCM warehouses across the United States are about $250,000,000 worth of medical and engineering supplies—enough to aid millions of Americans after an attack.

MEDICAL STOCKPILES include 1,282 civil defense emergency hospital units and back-up supplies estimated sufficient for the emergency medical care of 4½ million persons for three weeks.

In the engineering stockpile are approximately 35,000 tons of equipment and supplies. They contain material essential to restoration of public facilities—water pumps, generators, purifiers, storage tanks, pipe and similar items.

To assure that this survival "warehouse" will be located where it would be most needed after an attack, ODCM has chosen warehouse sites convenient to but outside the nation's 92 critical targets.

Among these storage sites are three "general reserve" warehouses with stockpiles designed to supply any section of the country. Most unusual of these reserve storage areas is the vast underground warehouse in a converted limestone mine near Neosho, Mo. . . .

In this huge privately-owned cave, shared by ODCM with the stockpiles of industrial materials, is 14 acres of space covered by special automatic sprinkling and ventilating equipment.

YET THERE IS NO PROVISION FOR SUBSTITUTION OF ADMITTEDLY EQUAL AND, OR SUPERIOR DOMESTICALLY PRODUCED KENAF FIBER FOR JUTE which comes from Pakistan—near half billion pounds annually.

Twenty percent of these annual needs would put $15 to $20 million into American payrolls annually.

The Glades could easily expect half of this!

Your Chamber of Commerce and your PB County RDB are pushing this effort—with the aid of Congressman Rogers and Senators Holland and Smathers.
